TO: La Salle Community

FROM: Brian Elderton
Vice President for University Advancement

DATE: October 14, 1999

SUBJECT: Welcome to La Salle

Please join me in welcoming Rosemary Davis and Dolores Novelli to La Salle University.

Rosemary Davis is joining the Office for University Advancement as the Assistant Vice President for Advancement Services. As Assistant Vice President, Rosemary's responsibilities will include: maintaining and improving the quality of the alumni/donor database, prospect research, gift processing, accounting and reporting, the donor relations program that stewards the University's relationships with all donors, and special events. Ms. Davis is responsible for the day-to-day management of the OUA budget, works closely with me on strategic planning and will function on my behalf in my absence.

Rosemary comes to La Salle University after eight very successful years as founder and president of her own company, Rosemary Davis Consulting, Inc., a firm which provided development consultation to non-profit institutions and confidential research and evaluation of potential donors (individuals, corporations and foundations).

Dolores Novelli is joining the Office for University Advancement as Secretary. She will be primarily responsible for providing secretarial support for the Advancement Services function of the Office for University Advancement. She will also share responsibility with other members of office for providing general support for the Advancement programs.

Ms. Novelli comes to La Salle with over 22 years of secretarial, administrative support and gift processing experience. Prior to that, Ms. Novelli taught in an elementary special education program.

Rosemary and Dolores are located on the 4th Floor of the Administration Building and can be reached at ext. 1541.

Minutes of the La Salle University Curriculum Committee

May 14, 1999

Present: Nigro (Chair, Brazina, Bruce, Cicala, Grosnick, Miillard, Santugini (student), Soven, Van Nguyen, Walsh.

Absent: Baky, Beitz, Galante, Iovino (student), Kozen (student), Morocco, Otten, Smith, Wolf.

Presenters: Rosemary Barbera, Annette O'Connor and Jule Anne Henstenburg

1. The Minutes of the April 20, 1999 meeting were approved, after waiting for a quorum.
2. The first item on the agenda was a proposal for two new courses in the Social Work program, SWK 281: Human Behavior in the Social Environment II and SWK 430, Social Work Research Methods and a change in the number of SWK 281, Loss and Grief to SWK 350. Both requests are related to certification requirements.

The Department already has a one-semester course in Human Behavior and the Social Environment, but one course is inadequate. Sociology 320 will be eliminated as a requirement if the Research course is approved. Statistics will be included in the new course. Sociology 310, a course in theory, would become an elective.

Both proposals were approved unanimously.

3. A Minor in Nutrition was proposed by the Biology Department. The program has already been approved by the American Dietetic Association. Dr. O'Connor explained that the Minor would be of interest both to students interested in careers in this field and to those students interested in evaluating their own nutrition. The Minor was approved unanimously.

4. The Core Curriculum: A brief discussion about issues related to designing courses for the New Core followed. It was pointed out that the Religion and Philosophy Departments face a big challenge as they begin planning new courses. Discussion about the Doubles focused on which courses would be in the Doubles. No conclusions were reached, although the importance of using "gateway courses" in the Doubles was stressed.

Respectfully submitted,

Margot Soven

Curriculum Committee

Minutes of the La Salle University Curriculum Committee
September 22, 1999

Present: R. Nigro (Chair), J. Baky, G. Bruce, W. Grosnick, B. Millard, K. Morris, J. Seltzer, M. Soven, S. Wiley, Z. Wolf

The major discussion of the meeting focused on the implementation of the new Core Curriculum. Some of the points of discussion follow.

- Will it be possible to implement the new Core Curriculum for Fall, 2000 given the amount of time between now and next September and the need for formal review of the various elements to be implemented for that curriculum.
- With regard to the Lasallian Point System, current plans are to implement it as designed but to also have a fall-back position in place in case some unexpected problems arise.
- As was expected, the pilot experience of going through doubles this semester is proving very valuable.
- There is a need to have courses that would be offered as part of the new curriculum reviewed and approved by appropriate committees. This particularly applies to "pathway" courses and "framework" courses. It was suggested that this process might be handled in two phases. Since almost all such courses will be offered by departments in the School of Arts and Sciences, during the first phase, which covers this academic year, such courses would have to be approved by the Arts and Sciences Curriculum Committee. Then in the second phase, all such courses would first be reviewed by the Curriculum Committee of the appropriate school and then seek approval of the University's Curriculum Committee. Dr. Millard indicated that if this scheme were acceptable that she would be happy to have representatives from the other two schools sit on the Arts and Sciences Curriculum Committee during this preliminary review.
- It was also suggested but not approved that new pathway or framework courses, that are needed to help form the necessary doubles for the new students, might be offered during the first year of implementation as topics courses before they received formal university-wide approval.
- There was discussion about the plan to have all new freshmen take a double during the Fall semester. The focus of that discussion included the realism of that taking place particularly in light of the many scheduling difficulties that already exist. Several members of the Committee, who also serve on the advisory committee for the new curriculum indicate that this had been a major portion of their agenda at a meeting held earlier in the day.

The committee then spent time trying to organize a list of items that needed attention during the next few meetings (a to-do list)

Guidelines concerning proposals for new courses to be offered as part of the new curriculum must be prepared, approved by this committee and disseminated to departments that might offer such courses.

It is necessary to clarify what will be the review processes that will be applicable to various elements of the new curriculum e.g. pathway courses, lasallian points, doubles courses

Decisions must be made concerning "zones of responsibility" i.e. what must this committee do, what can be decided by another group such as the advisory committee.

An assessment plan for the new curriculum must be prepared. It was not clear if this is the responsibility of this committee or the responsibility of the advisory board.

Because of the pressure to move ahead on these various topics, the Provost indicated that he hoped to hold a meeting of the committee before the next scheduled meeting.

Respectfully submitted
Samuel J. Wiley

EUGENE O'NEILL'S

LONG DAY'S J.O.U.R.N.E.Y INTO NIGHT

This work is interesting enough for its history. Completed in 1940, Long Day's Journey Into the Night is an autobiographical play Eugene O'Neill wrote that--because of the highly personal writing about his family--was not to be released until 25 years after his death, which occurred in 1953. But since O'Neill's immediate family had died in the early 1920s, his wife allowed publication of the play in 1956. Besides the history alone, the play is fascinating in its own right.

It tells of the "Tyrones"--a fictional name for what is clearly the O'Neills. Theirs is not a happy tale: The youngest son (Edmond) is sent to a sanitarium to recover from tuberculosis; he despises his father for sending him; his mother is wrecked by narcotics; and his older brother by drink. In real-life these factors conspired to turn O'Neill into who he was--a tormented individual and a brilliant playwright. Amazon.com

Thursday, October 28
3:30 - 5:00 p.m.

The Art Museum--Lower Level--Olney Hall

Spend an afternoon at our own University Art Museum with Sabrina DeTurk, Jim Butler, and Joe Dougherty. You don't have to leave campus to see a collection of European and American Art that spans the Middle Ages to the Twentieth Century as well as Japanese prints, Indian miniatures and African tribal art.

Over the years, faculty across the University have used the resources of the museum to enrich their teaching. The workshop will show you ways to incorporate the Art Museum resources into your classroom. If you've never visited the museum, the workshop can be your introduction. If the museum is an "old friend", come explore new ways of looking at it as a teaching resource.

Sponsored by the Teaching and Learning Center

Due to space constraints, workshop enrollment must be limited to 20 participants. Please return the attached form to Jeannie Welsh Box 332, email welsh@lasalle.edu, or phone x 1883 if you plan to attend.

I plan to attend the October 28 workshop at the Art Museum.

1999 ANNUAL MEETING OF THE PENNSYLVANIA AAUP

MCP Hahnemann University • Philadelphia • October 30

The Corporatization of the University: Is the Faculty in Jeopardy?

Jonathan Alger, chief legal counsel for the AAUP, will address the 1999 annual meeting of the Pennsylvania AAUP on the corporatization of the university and the dangers it poses for academic freedom and faculty governance. Before joining the AAUP legal staff in 1996, Alger was Senior Attorney-Advisor at the U. S. Department of Education's Office for Civil Rights where he served as legal and policy advisor on issues of race, gender, age, and disability discrimination in education. As AAUP chief counsel, Alger supervises the association's legal work on issues such as labor and employment, discrimination, affirmative action, academic freedom, university governance, and intellectual property. In addition to his many publications on the legal aspects of free-speech, affirmative action, and discrimination in higher education, Alger serves as legal advisor to the American Council on Education's faculty diversity project and national research consortium.

Following Mr. Alger's opening address in the morning session, the afternoon session will be an open forum on issues of academic freedom and faculty governance on campuses throughout the state. The meeting will be held in the New College Building, MCP Hahnemann University from 9:30 am to 3 pm. A continental breakfast and lunch will be served on campus. There is no registration fee, and both members and non-members are invited to attend.

REGISTRATION

To register for the meeting, send your name, institution, and address to Dr. Gerald Soslau, MCP Hahnemann University, IMS Dept-MS 344, Broad & Vine Streets, Philadelphia, PA 19102 or call Jan Griffith at 215-762-8217 no later than October 22.
